

A collection of my photographs some of which are normal and some of which have been adjusted in Photoshop.

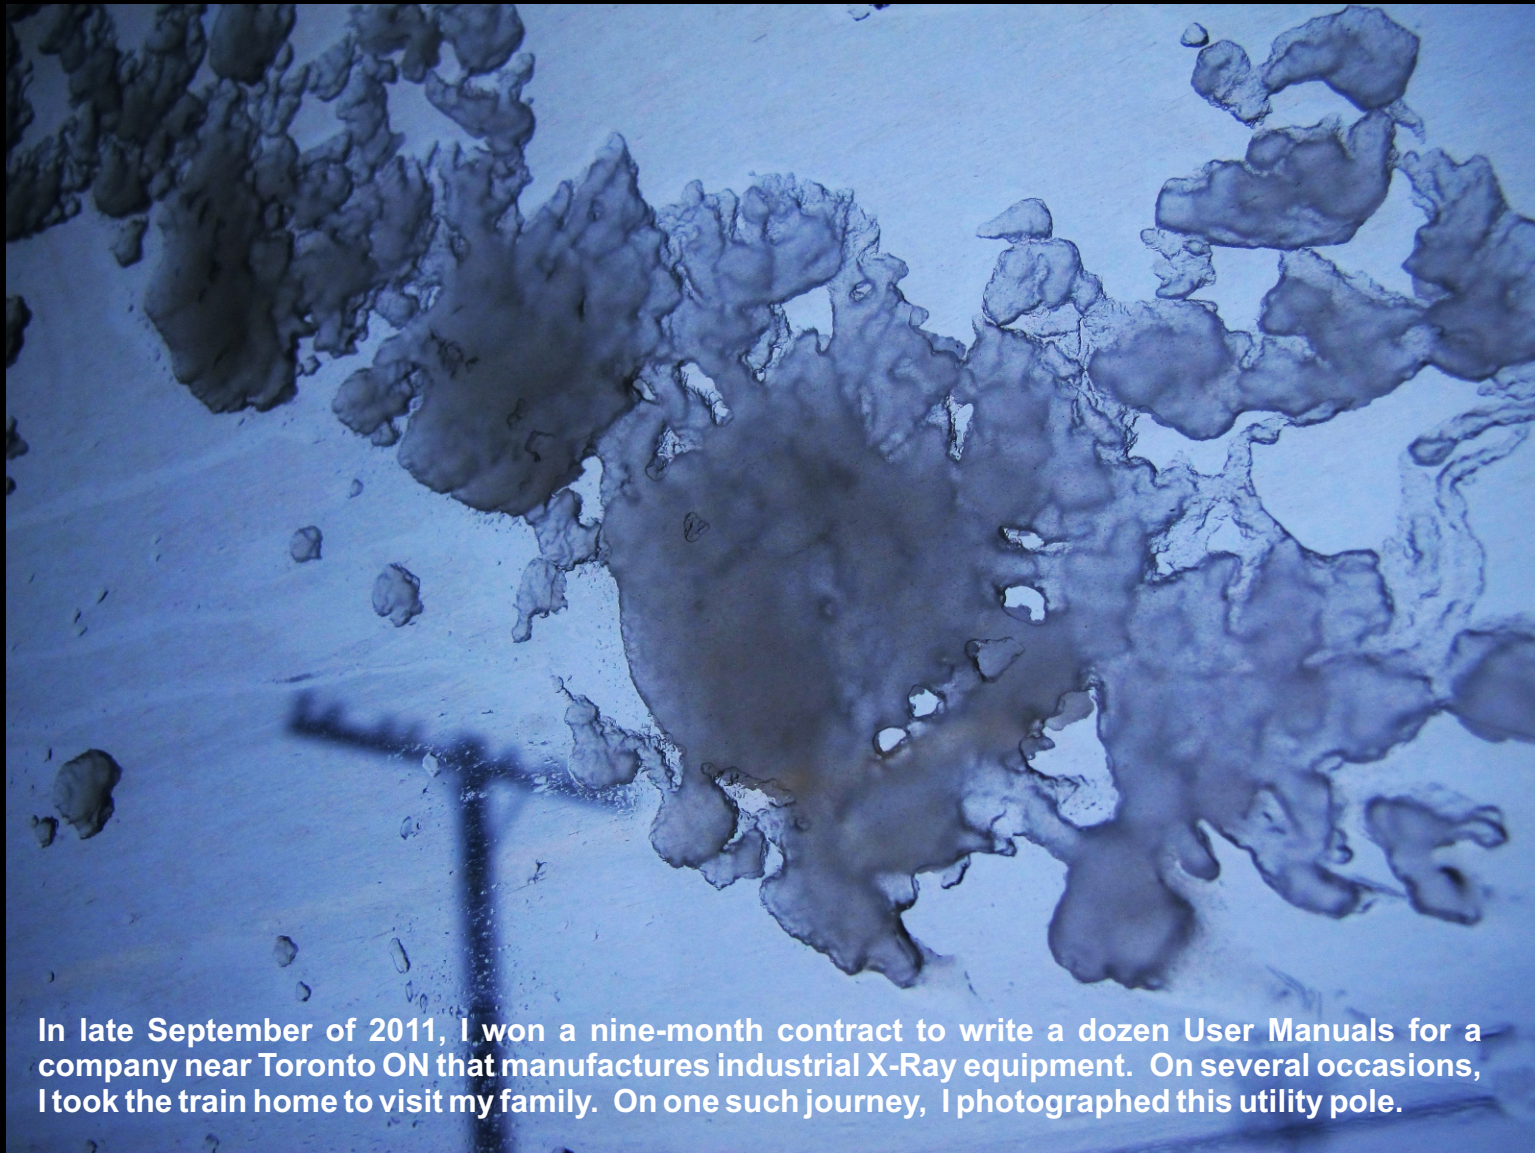

This, believe it or not, is a Cedar Waxwing.

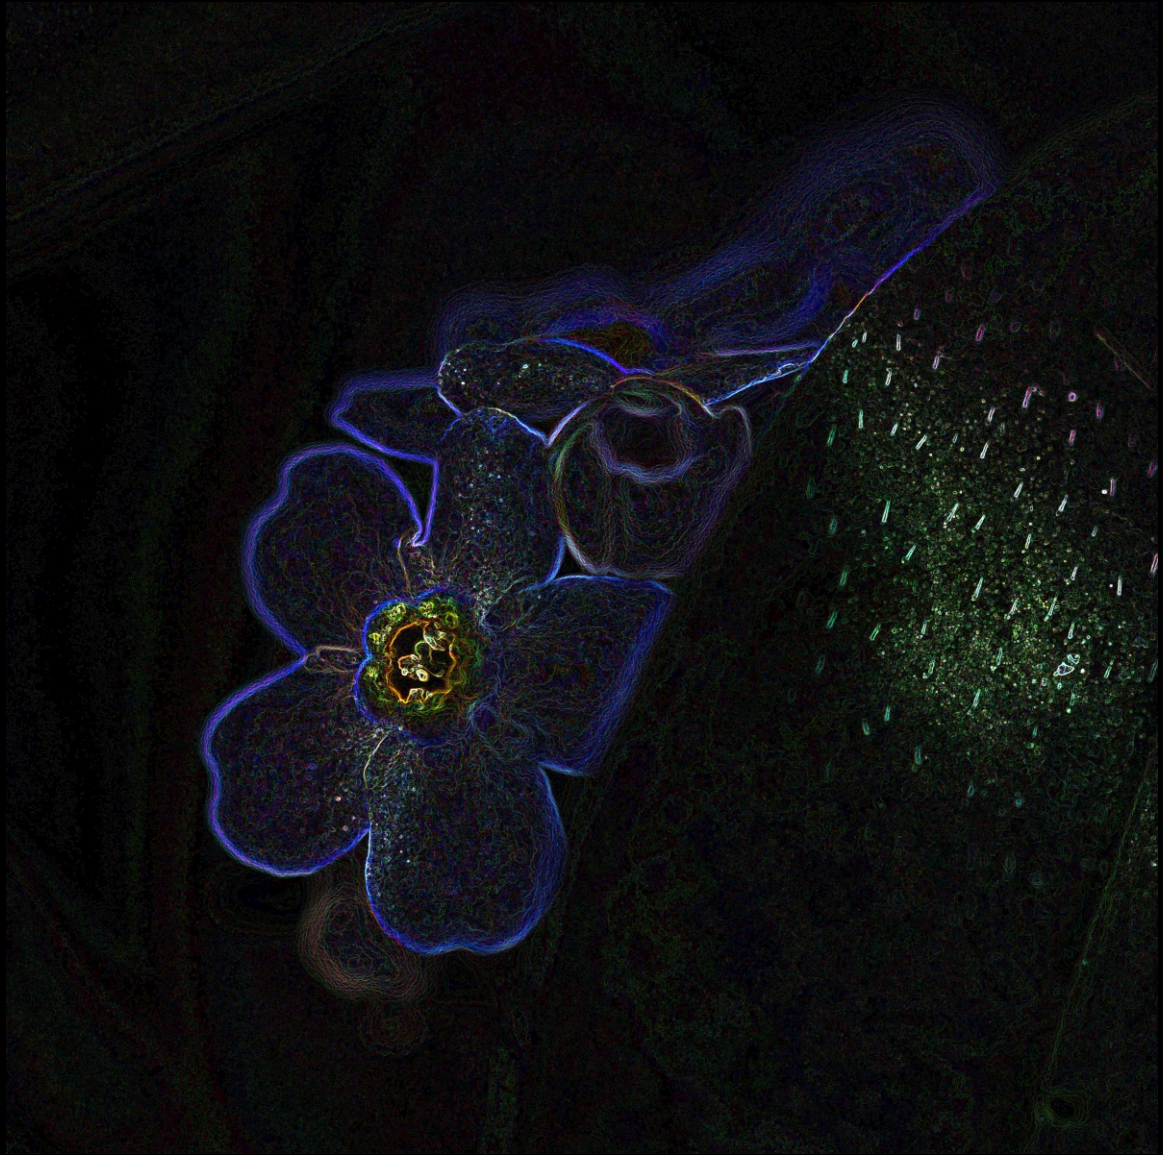

In late September of 2011, I won a nine-month contract to write a dozen User Manuals for a company near Toronto ON that manufactures industrial X-Ray equipment. On several occasions, I took the train home to visit my family. On one such journey, I photographed this utility pole.

Lake Simcoe and some ducks

From 1947 to 1960, Jim and Jean Porter and their five children farmed north of Keswick, ON, on the eastern shores of Lake Simcoe. This was our home during those formative years, and these are sunset shots from the neighbourhood.
